

Your Own Version

It was a quiet Sunday morning in Florida and four police units were pursaching a stolen truck.

The lonely drunk driver was triing everything to loose the first following unit previously called by other drivers calls. The officer called the radio for backup, a vehicule is soon arriving to help the Unit1 for stopping the crazy-driver now driving at 125 miles/hour.

A man, wearing a black uniform, officer Therry, shooting with a fake gun, tried to made the driver slowing down... No effects... In fact, the vehicule appears to have fun of this new coming!

After several shots, Therry made a fast decision, he jumped into the truck and finaly success to stop the driver without hurting any other driver.

By questionning the young driver after the pursuit, the police hear of his age (fourteen), also that he made 540miles from his parent's home where he stole the truck of his father.

Without any excuse for his behaviour, the young boy called Greg apologized for all the damages he did, had a fine of $13 000 and were sent in a special division of alcoholic cure of the next two years...